WT regents reinstate Caballero

Regents unanimously reinstated Dr. Emilio Caballero as chairman of the West Texas State University art department Saturday.

They also established a due process procedure specifically for the 20-year WTSU veteran educator should WTSU administrators try again to depose Caballero in the future.

Board Chairman Cloyce K. Box told the News the procedural standards were voted on to assure Caballero due process should administrators relieve him of duties as department chairman in the future, but he added "hopefully they won't."

Board Secretary Donald R. Curry said following the meeting the action taken in three separate motions by the regents during open session following a one-hour closed discussion was agreed upon behind closed doors after regents consulted with the Texas Attorney General's office and after "fact-finding" by regents themselves.

The vote on all three motions — to reinstate Caballero as chairman of the department and to set up the due process procedure — was unanimous.

Saturday's surprise action on the Caballero controversy ended several months of furor over what Caballero had said was a forced resignation from the administrative position.

Caballero handed in a letter of resignation in early January and regents accepted the resignation in February after what was reported to be a heated two and a half hour executive session.

Then, in June, Caballero supporters asked regents to reconsider their February action and George Whittenburg, an Amarillo attorney representing Caballero, offered a letter from the artist asking that his letter of resignation be withdrawn and that he be restored to the chairmanship.

Curry, a Fort Worth attorney, made two specific motions concerning Caballero's status during the Saturday session.

"I move resolution 7525 of February 6, 1975 accepting the resignation of Dr. Emilio Caballero as head of the art department be rescinded," he said.

New Board Member Dee Osborne of Houston seconded the motion.

"I move that it be resolved that the board accept the request of Dr. Emilio Caballero of June 6, 1975 to withdraw his resignation letter of Jan. 15, 1975," Curry said and the motion was seconded by B. Raymond Evans of Tulia.

Box passed to regents copies of a five-page recommendation he said he proposed for acceptance in connection with Caballero.

The recommendation was approved and Box said the procedure established under the recommendation will be applied only to Caballero and not to other administrative officers of the university.

The Box proposal sets up formal hearing procedures should Caballero be dismissed as department chairman and leaves to the board of regents the final appellate jurisdiction for any appeal decision.

Following the meeting, Curry said the regents in passing the motion approving Box's proposal for a due process procedure were simply putting all parties on notice that there would be such a procedure in the future should Caballero be dismissed as department chairman.

Caballero contended in a letter read to regents by Whittenburg at their June 6 meeting that he was coerced into involuntarily giving to administrators a letter of resignation as chairman of the department. He had told The News he was approached at least twice by Dr. John Green, dean of the School of Fine Arts, about submitting a letter of resignation.

Caballero called in the June 6 letter for a full hearing on the charges against him.

The procedure for due process for Caballero adopted Saturday establishes a hearing committee made up of three department heads and two deans to which a first appellate action on dismissal could be taken.

In other business Saturday, regents approved advertising for bids for repairs and addition of fire escapes and improved fire protection equipment in the old administration building, damaged by fire June 23.

A special regents committee will examine the bids later this month and approve the lowest bidder for the project.

Financial Vice President Hermas Miller told regents he expects Gov. Dolph Briscoe to appropriate about $250,000 from Bryan Garner, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gary Garner, qualified for the Texas State PGA Junior Tournament by placing second in the Pampa PGA Junior Tournament held Friday on the Pampa Country Club golf course. Garner's 18-hole total was a two-over-par 73.

Caballero elated by board action

A relieved Dr. Emilio Caballero told The News from Jacksonville, Fla., Saturday afternoon he is "extremely pleased" by the action taken by WTSU regents earlier in the day reinstating him as chairman of the art department.

"I've always had the best interests of WT at heart and I'm devoted to it," he said. "I hope now all the furor can be forgotten and everyone can get back on an even keel and that it has not done too much damage to WT and the art department."

Caballero said he feels the action "takes a great load off my mind."

But, he said from the home of his son in Florida that should university administrators make another effort to dismiss him as department chairman he would use the due process procedure established by regents in other Saturday action.

"I see no other recourse," he said of that possibility.

Caballero thanked his friends and the regents for their action.

Metcalf sees utility rate hike requests

City Manager Glen Metcalf told city commissioners in a memorandum last week he believes the utility companies which serve Canyon customers will ask for rate increases during the next year.

Metcalf cited that belief as one reason commissioners should pass an ordinance regulating utilities who operate in the city and setting out step-by-step procedures in figuring justifiable rate increases.

City commissioners are expected to continue discussion Monday night of a proposed ordinance prepared by City Engineer Bill McMorries.

Canyon is served by three major utilities — Southwestern Public Service Co., Pioneer Corporation and Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The electric company was granted a rate increase only last year.

"I have placed this ordinance on the agenda for discussion again at the August 4 meeting because I feel it necessary to the citizens of Canyon that such an ordinance be considered," Metcalf said in his memorandum to commissioners. "By this I mean that the legislative bill passed by the legislature creating the Utility Commission does not go into effect until September 1, 1976, and that some guidelines regarding rate increases by such utility companies should follow some procedural outline and I feel this Ordinance would provide those guides necessary.

"I would further state that it is my opinion that before September 1, 1976, each utility company will appear before the City Commission for proposed rate increases."

McMorries proposed the city adopt the utilities ordinance after Texas legislators during their spring term established a Texas Utilities Commission which will oversee the telephone company and which will be an appeals body on rate hike requests for other utilities.

Currently, the utility companies have a franchise from the city to operate within the city and must come to commissioners to seek rate increases to local customers.

Discussion Monday night is expected to center around objections from Southwestern Public Service Co. to the proposed ordinance. Other companies have not filed written objections to the ordinance.

Metcalf endorses the ordinance in his memorandum to the commissioners.

"In summary, I would simply state that I feel such an ordinance would simplify and eliminate a lot of the costly and time-consuming efforts a City must participate in when determining whether such an (rate) increase is justified," he says.

The city has already apparently been handed a request from Southwestern Public Service Co. for an increase in rates charged the city for providing street lights.

Metcalf said Thursday the current agreement between the city and the company for providing electricity for the lights expires in October and the firm has proposed a 19 per cent hike in rates for the lights.

The current monthly electric bill for street lights is $1215, Metcalf says in a memo to commissioners. If the company is granted the requested increase, the monthly bill will rise to $1443.

Metcalf also proposes on the Monday night agenda that commissioners consider hiking a fee of their own.

He suggests that the deposit required of new water customers be hiked from $10 to $20.

In a memo to commissioners, Metcalf says the deposit should be doubled because "of the large sums of delinquent bills that are having to be absorbed by the Water Department because the deposit is not large enough to cover the bill."

The city manager recommends that the deposit rate be kept at the $10 level for those customers already on the city water lines, but that the fee in the future be $20 per customer.

Other business scheduled for commission consideration includes passage of a new ordinance creating a city Park and Recreation Board.

An ordinance proposed for adoption by Metcalf would create a seven members and will have no official power "but it is an investigative and recommending board for the city."

The purposes of the board under the proposed ordinance would be to advise the city commission on problems relating to parks and recreation and to recommend to commissioners plans and programs to promote parks and recreation.

Commissioners are expected to pass on final reading an ordinance allowing a franchise to T.D. Austin for operation of a cable television station in Canyon.

Commissioners meet at 7 p.m. Monday at the community center.

Company spokesmen deny hikes considered for city by firms

Utility company spokesman said Saturday their firms have no plans at this time to ask for rate increases in Canyon.

City Manager Glen Metcalf told city commissioners in a memorandum at week's end that he feels the companies will ask for rate hikes here before Sept. 1, 1976.

Bob Mills, public relations manager for Pioneer Corporation, said the gas company has discussed rate increases but has no plans at this time to seek a rate increase in Canyon during the next year.

"If you're asking whether we have specific plans (for an increase request) at this point," he said, "I'd say no."

Joe Gidden, local manager for Southwestern Public Service Co., said his company likewise has no plans to ask the city commission for a general rate increase to city customers.

The electric company was granted a rate increase in the city last year.

Mike Patrick, area manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., said his company does not have any plans for a rate increase request, either.

"I don't know where he got his information," Patrick said.

The three utility companies operate in Canyon under a franchise agreement with the City of Canyon and are required to come to city commissioners with formal rate hike requests for approval.

Metcalf made his prediction in a memorandum to city councilmen concerning a utilities ordi-

Fire marshall due WTSU visit

Representatives of the state Fire Marshall's office will be on the West Texas State University campus Aug. 11 to inspect all campus buildings and make recommendations on how to improve fire safety.

Hermas Miller, financial vice president at WTSU, said the university requested the formal inspection last spring.

He said the university will attempt to comply with each recommendation of the visiting team.

The fire marshall was asked to visit the campus last spring after a series of News articles on fire safety at WTSU.

Local fire officials said at that time the university had several fire hazards, including fire gear in the old administration building and education building.

Miller said Thursday he has yet to hear from the office of Gov. Dolph Briscoe on possible funding for renovation of the old administration on building, which was damaged by a basement fire.

University regents, meeting on campus Saturday, were expected to approve a recommendation from Miller that the building be renovated.

Miller said, given regents okay, he will advertise for bids for the renovation project and for the addition of fire escapes and improvements to the standpipe water system in the building. He said he also hopes to be able to have enough money to remodel portions of the second and third floors of the building to lessen the fire hazards in large classrooms on those floors.

If, he said, adequate funding is not allocated by the governor for the complete project, he will reject the bids for those portions which cannot be financed.

Schools to get tough on student absentees

With state funding more than ever dependent on the number of students who actually attend classes in 1975-76, the Canyon school district will make a concentrated effort in the fall to ensure that every child who should be in school is in school.

W. V. McAlpin, administrative assistant to Supt. Jerry Jacobs, said part of his job this year will be to keep close tabs on school attendance and to counsel with parents and students about attendance.

Canyon High School administrators are proposing a new system in the fall, which they hope will improve attendance there. They are expected to ask for school board approval Tuesday night of an incentive program to produce better school attendance.

"We're going to have to make a more concentrated effort to get the kids in school or make sure the parents get them there," McAlpin said.

He said the Canyon district is encountering an increasing number of students who are not attending classes simply because they don't like school.

The law, he said, requires compulsory attendance of children between the age of 7 and 17.

But, he said, students in the 15 and 16 year old age bracket are increasingly "laying out of school" with the approval of their parents.

The parents of such children, he believes, are hurting not only their children but also the children of other parents in the school system.

McAlpin said in a majority of cases a child's failure in school work can be traced to poor attendance.

"If he has poor attendance, then he has poor grades and then he can convince people that he should drop out," McAlpin said.

Current school policy requires that if a student misses classes for a reason that is not excusable, he loses three points on his six-weeks grade.

McAlpin said under a new state law passed recently on school financing, the Canyon school district is more than ever dependent on good school atten-

Initial tax notices out to taxpayers

The first of about 35,000 notices telling Randall County taxpayers their taxes will rise next year have been sent out by County Clerk LeRoy Hutton.

Hutton said the remainder of the notices should go out late this week.

The notices, required by law to be sent each taxpayer whose taxes change during the year, tell taxpayers what their tax was in 1974 and what the tax will be this year.

Hutton said he has sent only about 75 notices out so far — to utilities, pipeline owners and banks as well as new accounts.

Persons receiving those 75 notices will have the opportunity on Aug. 11 to appear before Randall County commissioners, sitting as a board of equalization, to question or complain about the tax increase.

Persons receiving the notices to be sent out Thursday will be scheduled to appear before the board of equalization, should they desire, on Aug. 18.

About 10,000 other notices will be sent out later to personal property taxpayers, who will be asked to appear on Aug. 23.

County commissioners hiked taxes for all taxpayers in the county during July meetings. The 1974 tax was based on $1.05 per $100 on 17 per cent of valua-

Metcalf's water plan makes good sense

The prophets of doom have had their say about the water supply which will be available to Canyon and its residents over the next several decades.

During the past decade, college professors and research consultants have warned that we're nearing the end of a plentiful water supply.

Fortunately, while many of us would like to sit back and believe water is a resource we will have forever just for the tapping, some folks in city government are doing some thinking about the future.

Farmers around Umbarger, where Canyon's well fields are located, are not optimistic about the long-term supply of irrigation water for their fields. They're even less optimistic about the future of Canyon's supply.

The amount of water Canyon folks use to bathe, wash clothes and water their lawns is staggering.

In June alone, city residents consumed 66 million gallons of water and during the first six months of 1975 we've used 241.5 million gallons.

Much of that water — in fact during the summer months, most of it — goes onto lawns in yards and on the West Texas State University campus.

City Manager Glen Metcalf is toying with an idea that would cut that water consumption and extend the life of the Canyon wells.

The crux of Metcalf's idea is not that water is wasted when it is thrown on green lawns or rosebushes. He figures his idea would not cut back on the drinking and bathing but might cut back on wasteful water use practices like leaving water hoses running out at WTSU during a summer downpour.

Metcalf's concept is to reverse water rate structures which in the past and currently give a price break to large water users. Under the current system, the more water you use the less you pay per 1000 gallons. Metcalf proposes to reverse that so that the more water you use the more you pay per 1000 gallons.

Given the basic prognosis that Canyon's water supply is somewhat less than infinite — by a few millenia — and that we're coming to the short end of the finite limits, Metcalf's idea seems a good one.

Water can no longer be treated as a commodity of infinite availability.

If we will not control ourselves in the practical use of water, city hall must. And, Metcalf's idea sounds like the best way of doing it.

Can Helsinki pact be more than a joke?

We've, of course, not seen a copy of the 300,000 word document signed Friday by President Ford and other European leaders, but if it contains, as is reported, a declaration pledging respect for fundamental human rights can it be anything more than a joke?

No document man could concoct could describe any better the test of respect for human rights than the United States itself.

Likewise, there is no document which could stand for the exact opposite better than the Soviet Union, whose leadership pushed so hard for the European security conference held last week.

Deeds, as the old saw goes, speak far louder than words.

By its actions, the Soviet Union, unless it took a monumental about face Saturday or early today, has the utmost contempt for those human rights deemed fundamental by a good portion of the Western world. The evidence is ample but is made most manifest by the overwhelming silence in Russia.

If "peace is not a piece of paper," as President Ford reminded European leaders last week, neither are fundamental human rights.

Can the United States expect a government which is committed to the squelching of fundamental human rights in its own borders (not to mention within the borders of neighbors like Czechoslovakia) to respect a commitment to peace scratched on parchment?

We doubt it.

Another barrier goes tumbling down

For those who are keeping score on such things, another discriminatory barrier has come tumbling.

The FBI has decided to admit short and medium-sized people — one of the most discriminated against minorities in the country — to the ranks of special agents.

Director Clarence M. Kelley announced recently that he and other officials have decided to drop the rule that all agents must be at least 5 feet, 7 inches tall.

The FBI director's decision is believed to have been influenced by a Justice Department argument that such a height requirement discriminates against women.

Now, we await a command from on high that all criminals must be between the height of 5-0 and 5-6 and weigh in at less than 165 pounds.

Leave the bikinis alone

Watch out for the pendulum department:

The Ocean City (Md.) council has decided to begin enforcing a 42-year-old ordinance banning topless males, that's right, males from the boardwalk.

The council ordered the city attorney to update a 1933 ordinance stipulating that bare-chested males displaying unclad torsos on the boardwalk are guilty of indecent exposure.

Mayor Harry Kelly said the council's action emphasizes the city's "image as a family resort."

Do away with the hairy chests, we concur. But, leave those string bikinis alone!

Class of '65, what have we learned?

BY CARROLL WILSON

Dear D.,

I haven't kept up with literature much in the last few years, so I really don't know whether the genre of books which in the 1950s popularized the "loss of innocence" theme of life are still fashionable.

You remember them, the books like "Catcher in the Rye," which took a blob of protoplasm and molded it and played with it and in the end unveiled — a blob of molded and mashed protoplasm.

I've been thinking a good deal of those kinds of books lately, as apparently have several other 28-year-old newspaper and magazine writers around the country.

Like those others, my reverie is sparked by the passing of the 10-year mark since high school graduation.

We were the class of 1965 and as I sit here I'm still trying to figure out what it is about the class of 1965 which makes those who have the opportunity want to sit down as I am and write about all the terrible and not-so-horrible things which have happened to the world since we crossed the stage with diploma in hand on May 10 years ago.

I guess, very simply, we're glad we made it to this point 10 years later.

Some of us didn't, you know. The war and all that.

But, I think I'll be happier when I can look back at age 80 and exult in a letter to you that we both made it, we members of the class of '65, through 10 pretty rough years, years during which the odds for survival are fantastically more slender than they are that we'd make it from age 18 to age 28.

The odds for us making it to age 80 will be bettered slightly, I think, by how we've responded to the ways in which the world has changed since 1965 and by how we respond to those future world-changing events in the light of our responses to the previous decade.

Thank God our commencement speaker was wrong when he told us the world would be ours to run, that the weight of decisions would be on our shoulders as he grabbed our heels, spanked our bottoms and gave us a gentle shove.

I prefer slow assimilation. At 28, I'm still not ready to take the full blame for what's happening around us. But, I've been better for the last decade.

I hope I've learned something.

Which brings me to another reason for my writing. My middle daughter Julie just turned two Friday.

I don't want to brag, but I'll tell you the kid's smart.

In just a year, one tenth of the time which has passed since we graduated together, Julie's learned to talk. I don't mean gibberish. She really communicates. In sentences. Clearly expressing herself.

She's also learned to understand what her mother and I are saying to her. She understands our language and our gestures, our moods.

In just a year, Julie has learned to walk, no, to run. She's learned to skip. To climb. To jump. To do somersaults. To slide. To swing. To dance.

To con her daddy.

She's learned to accept no for an answer, though she's still not graceful about it.

She's learned to expect a spanking when she deserves one.

She's learned to love big sister, little sister and mommy and daddy.

She's learned to feed herself and she's learned to tell her mommy or me when she needs to go to the bathroom.

My gosh, she's learned a lot.

In just one year.

In 10 years, we've been exposed to a lot, you and I and the rest of the class of '65.

Like hippies, yippies, flower children, grass, pot and hash, the '68 Democratic convention, the first man on the Moon, Charles Manson, Charles Whitman, Elmer Wayne Henley and David Brooks.

And, frisbees, "The Graduate," waterbeds, Watergate, Jesus freaks, LSD freaks, Vietnam, acid rock, the Beatles, bell-bottom jeans, Bella Abzug, Sirhan Sirhan and James Earl Ray.

And, Secretariat, LBJ, Ralph Nader, the moratoriums, Mylai, Richard Nixon, Simon and Garfunkel, women's liberation, gay liberation and the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Burt Reynolds in the nude, Sesame Street, The Pentagon Papers, Chappaquiddick, Ho Chi Minh, James Bond, Archie Bunker.

Black power, student power, flower power, sun power, no power.

Sharpstown, U.S.S. Pueblo, amnesty, Attica, Granola, the end of the draft, Mark Spitz, wife-swapping, a declining birth rate, detente and Alexander Solshenitsyn.

Tiny Tim, Bishop James Pike, transcendental meditation, transactional analysis, safety belts, Lew Alcindor, Biafra, heart transplants, genetic engineering, Jonathan Livingston Seagull, God is Dead.

Vince Lombardi is dead, Spiro Agnew, rap sessions, SDS, "M-A-S-H," 747s, love-ins, John Dean, Martha Mitchell, Andy Warhol, Aristotle Onassis, "Deep Throat."

The Green Berets, body counts, Red China, "The Exorcist."

I think Julie will take with her into the next decade, in fact into the next many decades, the things she's learned from her exposure to the world in the last year. She may, sooner or later, slow to a walk. Her mother and I hope she someday learns to go to the bathroom by herself.

I hope, D., that as you and I and those others of us from the class of '65 look back on the decade past we can take from it something which will carry us through the next decades.

I hope we've learned something.

Because I want Julie of the class of 1991 to look back as the new century dawns to view a landscape made better by the class of '65.

Why doesn't the United States give Texas back to Texans? Or why not return it to Mexico? Or how about going all the way? Let's deed it back to Adam and Eve.

The U.S. didn't pay Texans a cent for this beautiful piece of land they collect so much taxes from.

And Texas took it away from Mexico without paying any reparations whatever.

And Mexico took the land from the Spanish, and the Spanish took it from the French, who had previously taken it from the Spanish, who took it from the Indians.

If we want to be really righteous, shouldn't we try to find out how the Indians got it so we can deed it back to the original owners even if they have been dead from countless centuries?

And shouldn't we give Alaska back to Russia? After all we only paid Russia about 2 cents an acre over a hundred years ago. Why we practically stole our biggest state.

And why not give Louisiana back to France? We paid Napoleon less than one tenth of a cent an acre for the Louisiana Territory back in 1803.

As for that matter why don't we give the New England states back to England? Our Mother Country, who gave us so much, was not paid a cent for her colonies.

Does that sound insane? Well what about the little scheme already cooked up to give the Panama Canal back to Panama? It has only cost us about $6 billion, and who knows how many lives.

The Canal Zone is the most expensive acquisition we possess. We purchased the land in good faith in 1903. And Panama was delighted to sell it.

The U.S. has lived up to every agreement with Panama. And the employment the Canal has provided for the Panamanian people has given them the highest standard of living of any Central American country.

These are facts not disputed by the senators who want to give our Canal away.

Theodore Roosevelt expressed America's feelings about the Canal in 1918:

"The Panama Canal must not be internationalized. It is our Canal: We built it, we foritfied it, and we will protect it, and we will not permit our enemies to use it in war."

Then who on earth wants to give it away? Henry Kissinger, and the senators who follow him like sheep to the slaughter.

Senators are morally obligated to represent the people who elect them. The July, 1975, issue of the Washington Report published by the American Security Council showed 95 percent of Americans oppose giving away the Canal. Five percent are undecided, and only 2 percent approved.

Kissinger has already given away our national honor. Must we let him give away our security, too?

The Canal Zone was a deadly malarial swamp when we bought it. We built the Canal with taxpayers' dollars, medical research, and workers' lives. We have operated it fairly, on a non-profit basis for every nation that wants to use it.

If the Canal makes us no profit, why not give it away?

Because we need it, and so does the rest of the world.

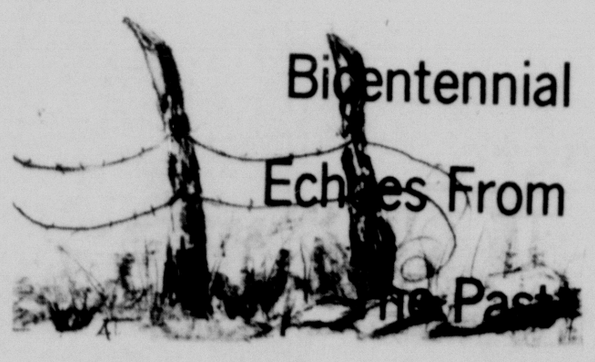

Panama has an unstable, openly Marxist government. If they get the Canal, it is only a matter of time until it is under communist control.

Is there anyone who thinks the communists would operate the Canal as we have, or give it back if we were unhappy with the deal?

Granted, the U.S. did not pay for Texas or New England, but we did pay for Alaska, the Louisiana Territory, and the Panama Canal Zone. (If we give one back, why not the others?)

They all belong to the United States of America. We need apologize to no one.

If you would like to keep it that way, write Senators John G. Tower and Lloyd Bentsen, United States Senate, Washington, DC 20510, and tell them how you feel.

By Janie Meyer Loudder

A few miles to the east of Canyon, on the road that leads to the Palo Duro, lies a community once steeped in the culture and traditions of German-Lutheranism. Much of the land still belongs to the families of those early settlers who helped develop that part of Randall County. Their reasons for coming to America were varied, but perhaps one pervading dream dominated the emigration from Germany to America and eventually to the Panhandle of Texas — that of adventure and the prospect of owning and farming one's own land.

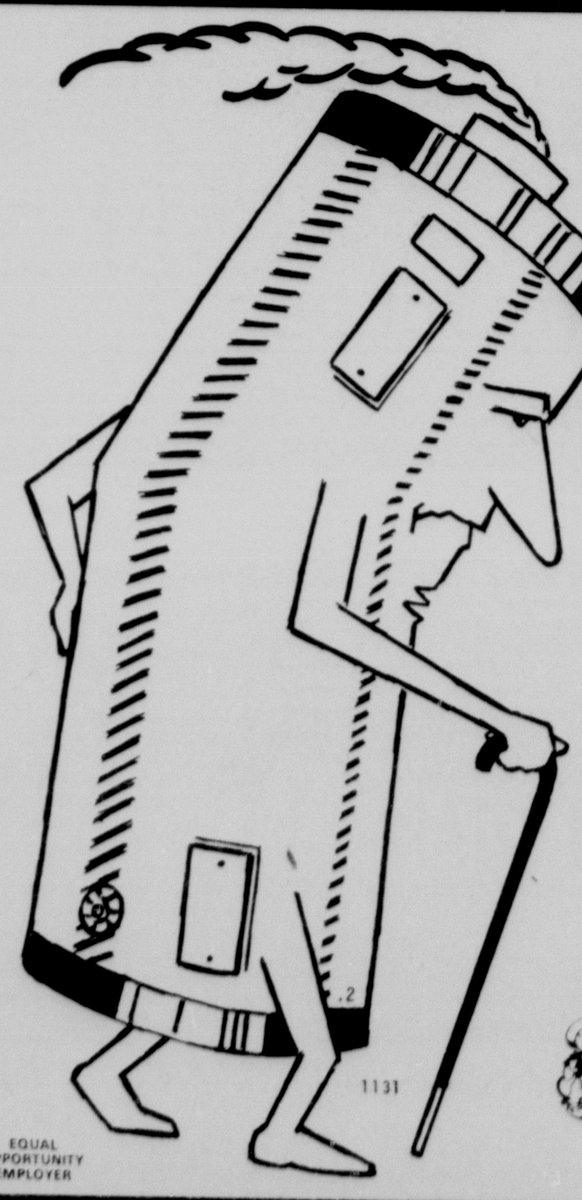

It was a mild winter's day in January, 1909, when the first permanent German-Lutheran families arrived by train from Wisner, Nebraska, to settle a few miles east of Canyon City. Those four families are names still familiar to many, for they stayed and farmed and lived and died here. They were: Henry Meyer, Herman Meyer, Gus Leseberg, and Henry Gerdsen. In time would come others, the Albers, Kuhlmans, Rogges, and Schuettes among them.

The story of this settlement begins a little earlier, however, for in 1907, several Lutheran men had come to take a look at the land that C.O. Keiser, organizer of Keiser Brothers and Phillips Land Company, had so favorably described. Paul Pfluegel and Henry Miller were among the first to come and settle in what was to become the German-Lutheran community. In 1908, Henry Meyer and others came from Nebraska to take a look; things appeared promising, so they bought land on this trip for $21.50 an acre. Returning a short time later, several built temporary homes on the land to which they soon brought their families. Mr. Meyer had built a granary before bringing his family to the area and for several years his young family lived on one side of the building and the other side was a shelter for the stock. This arrangement dispensing the need for the usual dugout.

Safety Classes To Begin

"Camp Safety and Survival" will be the topic of the first in a series of courses being offered to the public by Richard Bertrand, owner and operator of the Canyon Ambulance Service.

The Camp Safety and Survival class will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday at the Canyon Ambulance Service.

"We're averaging about ten persons per month who are injured in campground areas," Bertram said. The first class will include information on what a person should do if lost and also what he can do to help in the rescue procedure.

"We will let the persons in the class know what we will be doing to find them. Several persons have been lost in Palo Duro Canyon for 22 hours. If they had known what to do, it's possible we could have found them in a two-hour period."

According to Bertrand, the series will cover a seven to eight month period.

Class topics will include cardio pulmonary resuscitation, heart attacks, major as well as minor drugs, child birth, shock and diabetes, poisoning, major emergencies such as severe weather and a class meeting on the functioning of local government. The last class on local government will include information on the relationship of the police, fire department and the ambulance service.

Bertrand said the instruction will come from the local area. "We've got access to outstanding, knowledgeable persons in the Canyon community," he said.

When Bertrand began the Canyon Ambulance Service a few months ago, he was averaging approximately 25 calls per month. Now, he says, that number has risen to 60.

"I don't think I'm doing my job as a tax-assisted service unless I give 100 per cent to the public. It's hard for us to take care of the public unless they know how to take care of themselves," Bertrand said. This is what the classes are about, he added.

Each of the classes are open to the public and are free of charge Bertrand said. Date and time for the classes will be announced prior to the class meeting. Certificates will be awarded those who attend. For more information, interested persons should contact Bertrand at the Canyon Ambulance Service.

Twenty - Seven Attend Mission

Palo Duro Mission had an attendance of 61 on Sunday, July 27, with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cherry of Thalia Lynn Baptist Church in Virginia Beach, Virginia being presented the "iron cowboy" for having travelled the fartherest distance to attend the morning worship.

Harley Wesley, a Canyon layman, preached the sermon last Sunday and Treasure Brasher led the singing with her daughter, Cindy, accompanying at the organ.

Worship service today, August 3, will be conducted with Bob Brown of the West Texas State University football team giving the sermon. Local and area residents are invited to join the Sunday worships of the mission at the Cottonwood Grove, just beyond the fifth water crossing in Palo Duro Canyon.

Isaac Van Grove Here For "TEXAS"

Isaac Van Grove, musical arranger for the Palo Duro Canyon production "TEXAS," arrived in Canyon last week to view the play for which he wrote the original music and arranged the folk materials.

Mr. Van Grove has collaborated with the "TEXAS" author Paul Green on four other outdoor historical dramas.

After attending the performance of "TEXAS" Tuesday evening, Mr. Van Grove stated that "the storm effect has been vastly improved since I was last here for a performance" and further noted that the outdoor drama was "very surprising and fast paced with its young cast."

Mr. Van Grove was here to see "TEXAS" from his position as the artistic director for the Inspiration Point Fine Arts Colony Opera Workshop at Eureka Springs, Arkansas. Just prior to his trip to Texas, Mr. Van Grove was honored with the completion and dedication of an all purpose building there which has been named the Van Grove Student Center for housing the opera workshop, offices, a library and a dining area.

He is internationally famous as a coach for opera and concert singers including such names as Mary Garden, Grace Moore, Edward Johnson and Gladys Swarthout. He was composer-arranger for the ballets of the Ruth Page company, and has worked as musical director for Max Reinhardt in New York and Hollywood and has conducted numerous opera companies including the Chicago Civic, the Cincinnati Summer Opera and the St. Louis Municipal Opera.

Accompanying Mr. Van Grove to "TEXAS" was his wife, Joan Van Grove, an accomplished dancer and choreographer-stager for the Inspiration Point Workshop and Roger Cantrell, conductor-pianist of the Inspiration Colony.

Original music for the score in "TEXAS" was written by Isaac Van Grove, who returned this week to hear the show's score, along with his wife, Joan, at right, and Roger Cantrell, left. The trio of visitors were here from Inspiration Point Fine Arts Colony Opera Workshop at Eureka Springs, Arkansas and are shown visiting with Margaret Harper of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation.

Disney Film Scheduled

Walt Disney's "The Great Locomotive Chase" will be shown August 9 and 10 by the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in their second floor lecture room.

The film, starring Fess Parker, Jeffrey Hunter and Jeff York, shows the Andrews Raiders' attempt to cripple the Confederate Railroad system and shorten the war.

The scheme calls for the capture of a confederate train and the destruction of all bridges from Big Shanty, Georgia to Chattanooga, Tennessee.

The survivors of the adventure later won the nation's first Congressional Medals of Honor.

The showing is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. each afternoon.

Other film features scheduled for this month are "All Quiet on the Western Front" on August 16 and 17 and "The Living Desert" on August 23 and 24.

The museum's summer Sunday afternoon series will be completed with the second annual firing up of their early 1900s popcorn wagon on August 31.

Tuesday, Calvary went on to a win over Air Speed, who drew a first round bye. In the second game, Calvary won 22-4 over the First Christian Church team to get into the championship game.

'TEXAS' Triangles

Over 735,000 persons have attended performances of the outdoor musical drama "TEXAS" in the Pioneer Amphitheatre at Palo Duro State Park at the conclusion of July in the tenth season of the show.

A special guest for the Tuesday evening performance this week was Isaac Van Grove, arranger and composer for the music in "TEXAS."

Receiving the July 31 triangle was Haalid I. Lala of India with 1,713 persons in the audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Franklin of Dayton, Ohio have been in Canyon for about ten days visiting with his mother, Fanny Franklin.

Gospel Group To Sing Here

"The Damascus Road," a singing group known throughout South Texas, will be presented in a free concert Tuesday evening, August 5, at the Activities Center of West Texas State University.

The concert will begin at 7 p.m. according to the group's leader, Tom Helm. The singing group from Jacksonville, Texas was previously known as "Spirit and Understanding" and has recorded two albums.

The group has appeared throughout the South in high schools, churches, civic auditoriums, on college campuses and on numerous radio and television programs. The public is invited to attend the concert.

Local Man Charged With Hot Checking

Dean House of 1707 Brookhaven was charged Friday with theft over $10,000, according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Rick Wilcox.

Wilcox said the charges stemmed from a $27,000 hot check allegedly given James L. Heiman of Amarillo.

House appeared before Justice of the Peace W. A. "Bill" Wilson who set bond at $1000.

Board To Eye 1975-76 Budget

Canyon school board members will take another look at the proposed 1975-76 district budget during their regular meeting at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday night at the school administration building.

School officials told board members two weeks ago they anticipate the budget will require a seven-cent tax increase for the coming year.

Policy changes for administrators will also be considered during the meeting.

Chamber Directors To Meet Monday

Directors of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the community center for their regularly scheduled meeting.

Commission To Decide Fate Of Amarillo Annex

Randall County commissioners will discuss Monday what to do with their old South Amarillo courthouse annex on South Bowie Street.

The old structure is to be replaced by a new annex now under construction at Georgia and the Canyon Expressway.

Commissioners meet at 1 p.m. Monday in the Canyon courthouse.

Other items scheduled for consideration include passage of an order ratifying a change order for the construction project on the new annex. A total of $79,000 in certificates of obligation will also be authorized at the meeting.

his emergency fund for the repairs to the building.

Regents also approved construction of the Nance Ranch pavilion, which was destroyed by fire last year.

Dr. Dan White, chairman of the elementary education department, was named acting dean of the College of Education and Dr. Hazel Aslakson was named dean of the new School of Nursing at the university.

Golfer Qualifies For Tourney

A young Canyon golfer has qualified for the Texas State PGA Junior Tournament to be held in San Antonio on Aug. 12-15.

Sixteen year-old Bryan Garner, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gary Garner of Canyon, placed second in the Pampa PGA Junior Tournament held Friday. He shot a two-over-par 73 for the second place slot.

The second place finish qualified Garner for the Texas State PGA Junior Tournament to be held on the Brackenridge Golf Course in San Antonio.

The state tournament play is set to begin with two days of play before the cut is made. Flight play will begin Thursday, Aug. 14, with the final round to be played Friday.

The state tournament isn't new to Garner. The linkster was a qualifier last year.

Garner will be among the top junior golfers in the state when he goes south to San Antonio.

Rape Suspect Arrested

A 30-year-old Amarillo man was arrested early Friday by Randall County deputies on a charge of statutory rape which had been filed two years ago.

Robert McCune of 719 Garfield was scheduled to appear Friday afternoon before Dist. Judge George Dowlen in Amarillo.

He is charged in connection with the statutory rape of a 13-year-old Canyon girl on July 13, 1973, according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Rick Wilcox.

Randall County grand jurors returned an indictment alleging statutory rape against McCune on August 13, 1973.

Wilcox said McCune apparently left Canyon before charges were filed in 1973 and had not returned until recently.

nance which has been proposed for adoption in Canyon by City Engineer Bill McMorries.

The ordinance, if passed, would establish guidelines for figuring the formulas for fair returns and for rate increases for the companies.

Southwestern Public Service Co. officials met with Metcalf and City Attorney Elton Cox Thursday to discuss the firm's objections to the proposed ordinance.

The electric company is expected to be the only company represented at Monday Night's city commission meeting to object to the ordinance.

tion. Commissioners passed an increase to 95 cents per $100 on 25 per cent valuation.

Under the new tax system, taxes will rise about 30 per cent over the 1974 totals.

Commissioners expect to raise enough ad valorem tax money to allow them a $1.7 million budget for the 1976 fiscal year, which begins Jan. 1. Their current budget is for about $1.3 million.

They have not yet approved the formal budget for the fiscal year, but have informally gone through the budget requests from each county department.

Originally commissioners fixed the tax rate for the next fiscal year at $1.05 per $100 on 25 per cent valuation, but came back later in July and reduced the rate to 95 cents per $100.

The county is just one of three governmental units which will increase taxes for the next year.

Board members of the South Randall County Hospital District during July raised taxes by three cents from 25 cents per $100 on 51 per cent of valuation to 28 cents per $100 on 51 per cent of valuation.

Board members of the Canyon Independent School District will eye a proposed budget for 1975-76 Tuesday night which Supt. Jerry Jacobs has said will require a tax increase of about seven cents per $100.

PRPC Approves Senior Citizen Funds

Directors of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission last week approved allocation of $2500 to the Canyon Senior Citizens Association for the purchase of equipment and remodeling materials for their new senior citizens center.

Mike McQueen, of the regional planning commission said the funds will be made available to the local senior citizens this month.

The funding is for tables, chairs and paint and panelling for use in and remodeling of the old First Christian Church building which the association recently purchased after an extensive fund-raising drive.

The funding made available through the grant okay is the first federal funding the senior citizens group has been able to apply for.

In existence for just a year, the organization had originally attempted to acquire federal funding for the purchase or construction of a senior citizens center. They learned, however, all channels to federal funds were blocked until after the purchase of such a center.

During the spring, the group conducted a fund-raising drive locally and raised more than $23,000 for the purchase of the old church structure.

The building is not yet used as a center. The group meets Thursday nights at the community center.

dance for state financial support.

The amount of state funding which comes to the Canyon district teacher salaries is based on average daily attendance figures, he said.

Thus, if a parent allows his child to miss school without valid reason, every taxpayer in the district is hurt, he said.

McAlpin is shooting for an attendance record of 96 per cent throughout the school district for the coming year, and that figure accounts for sickness.

In Canyon High for last year, he said, the average attendance was at the 93.6 per cent mark. Attendance at the junior high was only slightly higher, he said, while attendance at the grade schools was considerably higher.

"If we could average 96 per cent attendance," he said, "we could qualify for (funding for) one more classroom teacher and that's about $8000."

If the 96 per cent average is to be reached, McAlpin said not only must those students who lay out of school be returned to the classroom but parents must realize that they have the same effect on the average daily attendance figures when they leave for vacation two or three days before school is officially out for holidays or summer break.

Likewise, students who cut school classes to help their parents with farm chores are hurting the daily attendance record and lowering the state funding amounts.

McAlpin believes an incentive program worked up by High School Principal John Sommer to encourage good attendance should help the average at the high school.

Sommer is expected to propose Tuesday night that board members allow him to base a portion of a student's grades on his attendance with extra grade points to be given for perfect attendance or for few absences.

"Most places that have tried this have increased enrollment," McAlpin said. "We're hoping the kids will put enough pressure on their parents that they will wait to leave town."

McAlpin said if the program is successful in the high school it might be possible to extend it to the junior high, where he says there is also a significant problem with absences.

If the incentive program fails to encourage a student to attend classes, however, McAlpin is prepared to take more drastic steps to keep attendance high.

He said he will receive daily reports from principals on students who are beginning to show increased absence rates.

Initially, he said, he will visit personally with the parents of the students. If that fails, he said, he will file criminal charges against the parents.

Echoes . . .

The first crops planted in the spring of 1909, after the sod had been broken, were millet, wheat, sudan and sorghum; but, alas, as so typical of the fickle Panhandle weather, the first year was dry and the crops were almost a total failure. During this time, a few other families came down from Nebraska, but most of them did not stay long. Some of the wives had not wanted to leave Nebraska in the first place and certainly that weighed heavily in their decision to leave. This corroborates this writer's feeling of the overwhelming importance of pioneer women. It is hard to visualize any successful settlement of this area without the total support, sacrifice, and courage of the women that came to live here.

Typical of the hardships that faced these women were those experienced by my grandmother, Mrs. Henry Meyer (Helene). The first year after arriving here, she gave birth to her fifth child, nursed her father through a severe illness and watched him die, saw their crops fail, and tried to adjust to a vast and unrelenting land while trying to bring a measure of refinement and comfort to her home and family. Along with the physical hardships and deprivations of that time, is it any wonder that many chose not to stay? But others, such as Mrs. Meyer, did stay and in time came to love this land so different from their native Germany.

It was not all hardship, however; the love and fellowship of their fellow Lutherans did much to assuage the struggle to survive, and the little German community became a very close-knit group. They had many parties. The families would gather at one of the homes, usually the Henry Meyer home, and Henry Miller would play his accordian and they would sing the German songs of their childhood. All the older people of the community had been born in Germany and these songs were an important part of their social life. The greatest social event was a wedding. If held in the afternoon, a great supper would follow and after supper came the good time. They would dance, play cards, sing German songs, drink beer, and dance again and they didn't get home until morning! They did not dance the square dance that was the favorite of the other settlers; they danced the waltz, polka, schottische and two-step, the dances they knew before coming to America.

The spiritual needs of the community were met early on. In 1908, the St. Louis seminary of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod assigned a graduate, A.M. Lohmann, to become a missionary to the Texas Panhandle. Traveling by train, by horse, and by foot, the young pastor, who was known as "Panhandle Pete," reportedly preached in 26 different towns and communities. He set up many preaching stations, including Zita, Happy, Dawn, Hereford, Friona, Dumas, Dalhart, Auburn and as far west as Conode in New Mexico. Apparently the Board of Assignments had no concept regarding the size of the Texas Panhandle. Pastor Lohmann's salary was $45.00 a month with no home furnished. However, in the summer of 1909 three graduates of the seminary were sent to assist him.

Lawn-A-Mat Answers Your Questions

A LOT OF GRASS GROWS UNDER HIS FEET

Q. Who is Lawn-A-Mat and what does Lawn-A-Mat do?

A. Lawn-A-Mat is America's first and largest producer of lawn products, delivered and applied to the home-owner's lawn. What we do is apply lawn products.

Q. Then you don't really do anything I couldn't do for myself, do you?

A. No, but I can keep you from having to do it, freeing you to do other things. And in most cases we can do it better than the homeowner. We have the expertise and precision equipment so that we apply the proper amount of the right product at the best time of the year. So if you will water and mow as we suggest, we'll apply lawn products properly, and together we will be fulfilling the requirements for a healthy, green lawn.

Also, we aereate every spring and fall and we mechanically seed in thin areas and bare spots. These are very helpful things that home owner's generally don't do. We can really help get a lawn moving.

Q. Sounds as if you really do a great job on a neglected lawn. What can you do for an already healthy lawn?

A. We have a minimum maintenance program consisting primarily of fertilization, weeding, and seeding which fits established lawns very well. Or we will apply just fertilizer on a one time basis if a person who generally does it all himself and likes it, is going to be out of town when time for fall fertilization arrives.

Q. Then you can build a program of lawn care for any budget and any lawn situation, right?

A. Exactly so. Call Lawn-A-Mat for a free lawn analysis and free estimate. Call 376-9092 anytime.

Barry McCoy, brother of the bridegroom, arranged and sang You Are So Beautiful as he accompanied the song with piano music. Harrell Slack, uncle of the bride, sang Wedding Prayer by David H. Williams.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of candlelight silk organza over bridal taffeta designed with a fitted bodice marked by French satin ribbon. The Kitchen Sink

By SUSAN WILSON

The whole country is in a panic over the new movie "Jaws." I don't mean to offend anyone, and I believe everyone is entitled to his or her own kind of fun, but watching people get chewed up by a shark is just not entertainment for me.

I know it's supposed to be a terrrific horror movie — and I'm sure it is — but it's hard to be afraid of sharks when you live a part of the country that made it through the Great Flood with 1.6 inches of moisture. There just aren't any sharks here, not even in Buffalo Lake. As a matter of fact the only sharks within 500 miles are loan sharks and we don't have any of those in Canyon. So, you see, "Jaws" may be scary — but not to me.

That's not to say I'm not scared by things.

Fear is a daily part of a homemaker's life. Real, honest-to-goodness blood-curdling fear.

Of course, a specific high-decible scream from a child will set anyone's teeth on edge. And, to see the kid bleeding profusely is a chilling experience every mother has had. But, there are other kinds of fear, too.

Fear is when that blood-chilling scream is emitted by your neighbor's kid because your little darling has bitten a chunk out of him.

Fear is leaving the kids with Grandpa and Grandma. Not that they won't have the very best of care. They'll have that alright, along with four lemon snap cookies, one root beer, three pieces of corn on the cob, one Hershey bar, one coke, half an apple, a package of peanuts, half a banana, a package of M&Ms, a bowl full of cornflakes, a donut, and the worst tummy ache they've ever had.

Fear is planning a birthday picnic for ten 5-year-olds and waking up to find rain.

Fear is finding that something has gnawed into your box of oatmeal. Horror is seeing the creature scurry across your cabinet.

Fear is seeing your 18-month-old at the top of a slide that's too tall for grown-ups.

Fear is when your 4-year-old confides before bedtime on Christmas eve that she told the variety store Santa she wanted a new baby carriage and this is the first you've heard about it.

Fear is when your house is in the worst possible mess and you're trying to figure out how to make one egg and one piece of baloney feed Hubby and three kids because it's all you have in the house to eat and the first of eight guests arrives for the dinner you planned for Friday the 7th, which you thought was next week and it dawns on you that today is Friday the 7th.

Fear is waiting for the final total on the cash register at the grocery store.

Fear is having a wreck — not the awful kind of wreck, but the little wreck which is your fault and causes a dent that's not big enough to be covered by insurance.

Fear is remembering a very important meeting on Tuesday that happened on Monday.

Fear is taking your 5-year-old, 2-year-old and infant to your great aunt's antique silver, cut crystal, french provincial, velvet and silk house.

Fear is your great aunt coming to visit your plastic, jelly glass, early Farm Bureau, terry cloth and diapers house.

Fear is promising the kids cupcakes and discovering that Hubby must've eaten the last one.

Fear is having a huge fight with Hubby one evening and knowing your child has "show and tell" the next morning.

Fear is discovering that a week after you filled your freezer with beef the freezer quit working.

When your daughter's best friend comes down with chicken pox and none of your kids have had it and it's only a week from vacation — that's fear.

Fear is when it dawns on you in the doctor's waiting room that your child is chewing gum when she hadn't come in with any gum and you realize she must have discovered what's stuck under chairs all over the place.

Fear is when your not-quite-trained toddler says "tinky potty" 25 miles from the nearest restroom.

Fear is imagining that when you go to your class reunion you'll be the only one who's aged.

Fear is thinking of a time when your kids might develop a dislike for peanut butter sandwiches and eventually starve to death.

Fear is sitting down to write a column on fear and not being able to think of a way to end it.

Bank Adds New Service

Canyon's First National Bank has announced a new customer service program that will allow for direct deposit of Social Security checks issued by the United States Treasury Department.

The new service will make it unnecessary for the Treasury Department to mail the checks to the Social Security recipient and rather will deposit the checks directly to the recipient's checking or savings account.

"Direct Deposit service will cut down on checks being lost, stolen or cashed with forged identification," stated John Childs, assistant vice president, "and will save the SS recipients the time and effort required to deposit their checks personally at the bank."

To obtain the service Social Security recipients need only to fill out an authorization form to have their monthly payments deposited automatically by the Treasury Department. Authorization forms are available for customers from Childs at the bank.
